

There's no place too remote.

Keep track of precious assets,
wherever they are.

Introducing Satellite M2M from ORBCOMM.

The only commercial satellite network 100% dedicated to M2M.

Mission-critical. Far, far away.

Sometimes the world's most valuable assets are also the hardest to reach. Off-shore oil reserves, desert salt mines, the list goes on and on. And that doesn't even include mobile assets travelling by train, truck, boat or air across vast distances. They're too precious to take your eyes off – but how can you watch over them when they're so far away?

Overcome the distance.

ORBCOMM provides data communications in even remote parts of the world via our network of low-Earth-orbit satellites. They're constantly in motion around the earth to ensure that your data gets to you.

They give you the capabilities you need for monitoring and alerts without the added cost of broadband or voice. Best of all, they provide two-way communications, so you control the data coming from and going back to your device.

Our Network

The ORBCOMM network of low-Earth-orbit (LEO) satellites provide cost-effective tracking, monitoring and messaging capabilities to and from anywhere in the world. Similar to two-way paging or e-mail, the system is capable of sending and receiving two-way alphanumeric packets of data. These short, economical messages increase the efficiency of your remote operations by making critical information readily available – even from locations far beyond the geographic and economic reach of traditional systems.

Assets on the move?

As a compliment to our satellite service, ORBCOMM also offers cellular data subscriptions for those assets located or travelling within coverage range, to reduce the cost associated with monitoring or controlling your assets.

Management made easy

Plus, ORBCOMM provides the tools you need to manage your communications, your devices and even your data remotely thanks to our unique Web-based service platform. It's just one more way ORBCOMM helps improve your business by streamlining the processes you use every day.

Keep your valuable assets within easy reach.
